Certol International to Launch New Super Concentrated Detergent Line

COMMERCE CITY, CO (May 5, 2014) – Certol International announces today that it will launch a Super Concentrated Detergent (SCD™) line of instrument cleaners and enzymatics in July 2014. These super concentrated detergents were developed as an economical, one-for-one replacement for the products currently used in SPD departments. These new products are extremely effective, reduce storage, are easier to handle and cost less to ship. Certol's new SCD line will be available through Medline Industries, Inc., Seneca Medical, Inc. and most national and regional medical distributors.

Certol's SCD line includes ProEZ SCD™, ProWash SCD™, ProClense plus SCD™ and ProLube SCD™. ProEZ SCD is the only four enzyme super concentrate on the market, with exceptional cleaning power, an extended high temperature range for enzymatic performance and effective anti-corrosive properties and material compatibility for a wide variety of commonly used medical instruments and devices. ProWash SCD has a neutral pH, is non-foaming, has no added dyes or unusual odors and performs equal to or better than industry leading competitive products. ProClense plus SCD is an economical, alkaline, non-foaming detergent and ProLube SCD is a non-toxic, silicone free, food grade lubricant system that is mineral oil-free and completely water soluble.

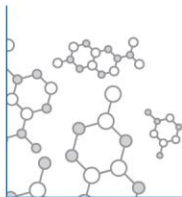

Edward Cassinis, President of Certol International said the following regarding the upcoming product launch:

"I am tremendously proud of the innovative work our R&D team does and we at Certol are excited to bring a super concentrate line to market that will once again leapfrog the competition."
